OVERVIEW

Creative Ireland Laois in collaboration with ReCreate Ireland are seeking eight creative practitioners from Laois to participate in a new Creative Sustainability training programme focussed on the ethos and practices of ReCreate Ireland. The aim of the training is to support the professional development of artists in creative sustainability practices. The programme is funded (so no cost to the artist/s) and will be delivered in person and online this autumn 2022.

We are seeking practitioners at all stages of their careers from a range of disciplines, art forms and informal educational settings. We welcome applications from recent graduates, youth workers, as well as seasoned artists and facilitators interested in furthering the sustainability credentials of their practice.

ABOUT CREATIVE IRELAND LAOIS

Creative Ireland is a five-year Programme which connects people, creativity, and wellbeing. It is an all-of-government culture and wellbeing programme that inspires and transforms people, places, and communities through creativity. Working with Creative Ireland at national level, the Laois Culture & Creativity Team is committed to the vision that every person in Ireland should have the opportunity to realise their full creative potential. The over-arching theme of the Creative Communities programme in Laois is "Sense of Place" and we aim to create a county in which culture and creativity are recognised as integral to life with opportunities for everyone in the county to become involved in creativity and culture be that as initiators and innovators as well as participants and audiences. Through partnerships with local and national government, cultural and enterprise agencies and local enterprise, Creative Ireland creates pathways and opportunities for people and communities to unlock their creative potential.

The Programme is built around key themes: Creative Youth, Creative Communities, Creative Places, Creative Nation.

ABOUT RECREATE IRELAND

ReCreate is an established social enterprise, focussed on creative sustainability and reuse with a nine-year track record. Our vision is to inspire curiosity, creativity and care for people and our planet. We do this by collecting unused and unwanted materials from industry and distributing them to our members as affordable creative supplies. We have an active membership base of 1000+ across Ireland and a supplier network of 100+ businesses. We champion awareness around the potential of creative reuse. We also facilitate a year-round programme of events, workshops and projects, and provide creative sustainability consultancy to schools, community groups and businesses. We also provide valuable work opportunities to adults with additional needs or those who are distant from the labour market

THE PARTNERSHIP

Creative Ireland Laois and ReCreate's partnership developed from the mutual ambition to support artists to embed greater sustainability within their creative practices. The training provides Creative Ireland Laois with the opportunity to support local artists in their professional development and ReCreate with the opportunity to play a vital role in expanding its creative reuse educational reach nationwide, beginning with Laois.

WHY

In nature, nothing goes to waste. However, as humans we are still largely operating in a linear economic system, out of sync with nature, that transforms raw materials into something new, then disposes of it. The European Environment Agency (EEA) says the amount of waste recycled in Europe is still less than half of total waste generated. The good news is that Ireland, the EU and many other countries worldwide are slowly moving towards a circular economy, where we perpetually reuse, repair and recycle products, keeping them in circulation within the economy and out of landfill. Whether working within participatory arts settings or within a studio practice, artists can be effective educators, advocates, and practitioners of the circular economy. In ReCreate, we are continuously working to find creative solutions to keep our reuse materials in circulation. This training is an invitation to join us and a new community of artists, to innovate creative circular solutions and contribute new knowledge and practices, which benefit our growing creative circular economy.

CREATIVE SUSTAINABILITY TRAINING

The successful applicants will participate in a hands-on training programme delivered by ReCreate Ireland and in-house team of full-time artists. Based on the ethos and practices of ReCreate, the training will support artists to devise and facilitate innovative creative reuse educational programmes and provide an introduction to entrepreneurial circular economy solutions.

The aim of the training is to

- To deliver high quality sustainable creative reuse practices in Laois
- To develop and support a new community network of artists in Laois
- To support the development and deepening of artists practices through reflection and sustainability
- To further promote the concept and potential of 'creative reuse' across all disciplines as well as sustainable solutions and practices to waste within formal and informal creative educational/workshop settings
- To potentially form an artists panel for Laois Arts - Creative Laois and ReCreate*

Though a panel of artists may be selected from the participants, there is no guarantee of work.*
